

STEPS Grant Program provides work readiness training and employment

When asked in a mock interview to name one of his strengths, Porterville College student Juan said, “I’m pretty good at working with my hands.” This summer, Juan got the opportunity to demonstrate his hands-on abilities through a job placement with the Porterville Adult School. The SEE Youth Program was able to help Juan and more than 20 other young people in the Porterville area gain work experience beginning in June.

Through a grant from the Workforce Investment Board of Tulare County (WIB), participants were given work readiness training and placed with various public and private organizations in the Porterville area. The grant, entitled STEPS (Summer Training and Employment Program for Students), was awarded to the SEE Workforce Development Program to help young adults with special needs, ages 16-21, gain work experience.

Porterville Adult School director Staci Phipps has been very impressed with Juan and his teammate David. “They have this amazing ‘what can we do next’ attitude,” she smiled. The young men were given the task of stripping and polishing the school’s vinyl tile – a job district maintenance personnel thought would take about a week. Utilizing a floor buffer, the young men had the floors gleaming in two days.

Training through the STEPS grant was conducted in small cohorts. For several days prior to their job placements, participants met in the SEE youth room at the Porterville Employment Connection on Henderson Avenue. Looking a bit like an urban coffee lounge, the room featured a high central table for work and conversation. The table also doubled as a place where a panel could assemble to conduct mock interviews with participants.

During the work readiness workshops, SEE’s Linda Patino and Benny Rivera led participants in exploring careers, building résumés and interview skills, learning about appropriate work behavior and attire, and filling out timesheets. Because money earned by participants through the grant is deposited into their bank accounts, the program also included financial management lessons. In total, participants received 40 hours of work readiness training and up to 175 hours of work experience. Participants also visited local agencies as part of their career exploration component.

Across town, Charley and Estefani were working shifts at the Porterville Public Library. While Porterville College student Charley made quick work of re-shelving books, Estefani worked the front desk, checking books in and out. “I enjoy helping people, especially if they need to find certain books,” she smiled.

Local partners enhance ERS student events

Each year, organizations throughout Tulare County support Educational Resource Services' (ERS) student events – donating money, volunteer hours, services, and products – to ensure the competitions are successful. Last year, ERS student events received over $31,000 in cash donations, plus an additional $13,000 in donated products and services. The Tulare County Office of Education Foundation alone provided $12,500 for trophies and awards presented at several competitions.

Members of the Tulare County Bar Association provided volunteer judges and scorers for Mock Trial, while the Tulare County Sheriff's Department waived the facility fees and provided staffing at the Tulare County Courthouse for that event. Longtime donor, Jostens Printing, donated the 76-page Tulare County College Night Planning Guide.

During the 2018-2019 school year, more than 13,000 students participated in ERS student events. These events were supported by over 400 TCOE staff members and community volunteers who devoted their personal and professional skills as judges, room monitors, and time keepers to help hard-working Tulare County students compete in one of the largest and most diverse student event programs in the state. "We are delighted to see the community's support for our student events continue to grow each year," said Tulare County Superintendent of Schools Tim Hire. "The value of these competitions is that students often get the real-world experience of collaborating with their teammates and presenting their work before a live audience."
