Formative Assessment for English Language Learners Grades 2-6

Wondering what type of ongoing assessments are used to track the progress of your English language learners? Formative assessment is a systematic process that is ongoing and tracked throughout instruction – which is key to improve learning. By monitoring what students are saying and doing, the assessment provides feedback, and timely instructional decisions are made to better meet students’ academic and language needs. This professional learning opportunity provides insight into formative assessment practices and tools that can be used to track the academic and language development progress of English learners.

Ideas we will discuss for formative assessment practices include:

- Observation checklists
- Language acquisition rubric
- Standards tracking documents
