Given the way the brain learns and the complexity of our alphabet, systematic instruction in foundational skills is essential to learning how to read. These skills must be linked to quality texts and instruction throughout the day. In this workshop, we will learn to infuse phonics routines into your day in a fun and engaging way. We will become careful observers of readers and apply best practices in both the primary and intermediate classroom. This learning will support the ultimate goal of transfer to reading and writing.

Deliverables:

- Phonics activities, assessments, lesson plans, and curriculum maps.
- Whole class, small group, and one-on-one interventions to support a tiered level of instruction.
- Instructional suggestions for teaching phonics to older students who struggle with foundational skills.
